NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — Perhaps Sir Malcolm Campbell could do it, but it was obviously too big a task for Niagara Falls street cars, even if the city streamlined them. Three young ladies from Virginia had a few hours left after seeing the falls. Then they wanted to see something of Canada.

"We'd like to take a trip around this country," one of the trio told the clerk at the terminal.

"Where would you like to go?"

"Oh, Winnipeg or Vancouver. Would one of these street cars take us there and bring us back in a couple of hours?"

TORONTO — Amalgamation of Canada's railway system, whether by private or public ownership, will never come during a Conservative regime unless the people give it clear and definite mandate. Prime Minister Bennett declared last Saturday. His government's program provided for a complete investigation into the whole transportation problem of Canada, to be carried out by the Economic Council. If the report of that investigation recommended amalgamation, the government would be submitted to the people.

MUCH OF NEW WHEAT HAULED TO ELEVATORS

Mostly Grading Number 1 and 2 With Little Variation

With many farmers throughout the district in the midst of threshing their wheat, and a number of combines in operation, considerable wheat is being hauled to the local elevators and the farmers are kept busy these days handling the grain.

The new wheat is grading fairly good and while there will not be much Number One Hard in the district, a large proportion of it will be Number 1, while some is expected to grade as low as four owing to frost damage. Most of the wheat delivered so far has graded either One or Two, and with dry weather the past week the grade is expected to improve on the wheat which has been affected by the damp, cloudy weather of a week ago.

Cutting of wheat in this district is now almost complete and frost damage from now on is not likely to be noticeable.

HOLLYWOOD—Executives of Paramount Studios said this week that negotiations to put the Dionne quintuplets in the movies "are practically complete."

They are so near to a successful conclusion, it was stated, that the complete film series have been assembled and are ready to fly to Canada to begin work.

The famous sisters have been sought for a sequence in the Harold Lloyd comedy "The Milky Way," the story of a milk man. Steps to secure permission from the Ontario government for their film appearance began more than a month ago.

HITLER ASKS A CHOSEN LEADER

NUERNBERG, Germany—Chancellor Hitler proclaimed rule of the Nazis as supreme in Germany and announced his successor will be elected by the party to rule over the whole Reich. It was the first time the Reich leader had ever publicly referred to the question of his successor.

Raising his arm aloft dramatically before the vast gathering attending the final session of the Third Nazi Congress, he declared: "I do not know when I shall close my eyes forever, but I do know the party will survive. It is up to you to elect the nation's chief. The army, representing the national defence, fidelity and obedience to the Fuehrer, designated by the National Socialist movement and should place its force at the service of the state."

Premier Aberhart said in Toronto last week that he had advised Social Credit leaders in Calgary he did not wish a candidate placed in Calgary West in opposition to Premier R. B. Bennett in the forthcoming Dominion general election.

Don't Sneer at Local Paper

When you hear a man sneering at the local paper because it is not as cheap and newsworthy as the city papers, you can safely bet he does not so consider any of his wealth in society. To make it better and that generally the paper has made more for him than he has for it. The man who cannot see the benefits arising from a local newspaper is about as much value to a town as a delinquent tax list.

GRASSHOPPERS STILL SERIOUS MENACE IN ALBERTA

Grasshoppers are still a serious menace in Southern Alberta and the indications are that the season of 1933 will see another large outbreak unless concentrated effort is put forth by the farmers to counteract the pest.

Fall cultivation of stubble land is being urged by the provincial and federal authorities as a means of destroying hoppers' eggs. A great deal of loss resulted this season from the fact that many farmers failed to heed the advice to cultivate stubble fields late fall, and that they proceeded to seed these badly infested lands this spring.

Many of these fields were a total loss. Prof. Strickland, of Alberta University, says: "It is well known that no grasshoppers lay their eggs in fall and, every field which is seeded after fall, is therefore, free from 'hoppers' when the latter hatch in the spring."

A careful examination of the fence rows at the time, and the use of bait on them wherever 'hoppers' are seen to have hatched in large numbers, will keep such fields free from grasshoppers, at least until they are flying.

"In stubble fields the problem is serious. Eggs may be laid throughout the season, and during the hot, dry weather of the summer and during the fall heavy frosts kill off the egg-laying females. They are placed just beneath the surface of the soil, and provided they remain undisturbed before winter, practically all of them will hatch in the spring."

All stubble should be shallowly cultivated in the fall.

"Nearly all of the eggs will perish, however, if the infested stubble is cultivated to a depth of not more than two inches in the fall. The object of this is to bring as many of the eggs to the surface as possible. Any that are thus exposed will perish. The farmer can use what implement he prefers as long as he keeps this object in mind. A well-constructed fall cultivation should destroy about 75 per cent of the eggs. It is obvious that it is more satisfactory to destroy the majority of the grasshoppers in this manner, before they have a chance to lay their eggs, than to wait until a considerable damage in the spring before it is possible to reduce their numbers with bait."

While many farmers are averse to fall cultivation which might enhance soil drifting, yet there can be little danger from this if the cultivation is shallow, leaving a "trash mulch" on the surface.

ABERHART GETS $2,250,000 LOAN

Although Premier Aberhart went to Ottawa last week to obtain an $18,000,000 loan from the Dominion Government, he had to be satisfied with a mere $2,250,000 for the present. This amount will carry the Province of Alberta over till the end of October when a new Dominion government will be in power in Ottawa, and will be responsible for the making of all loans heretofore requested for the eighteen million loan, Premier R.B. Bennett explained that he did not want to place this additional responsibility on the Conservative administration at the present time, when a general election is in progress.

While in the East Premier Aberhart was in conference with leading bankers in an attempt to get their co-operation in the national interest effect of the Social Credit plan in Alberta.

Miss Nellie Foster, L.R.S.M., an experienced violin teacher, was in Carbon last week looking over the possibilities of starting a violin class in Carbon.

C.E. JOHNSON IS CHOSEN SOCIAL CREDIT CND'ATE

Charles E. Johnson, Three Hills School Teacher, and exponent of Social Credit for some time, campaigning in the Provincial election, on E. P. Foster, was unanimously chosen by the Social Credit advisory board of the Bow River Constituency, as Social Credit candidate to contest that riding in the coming federal election.

Mr. Johnson was one of the three nominees chosen out of many nominations made at the Social Credit convention held at Inverness last week. The other two names being submitted to the advisory board were E.J. Wright of Aldred, and G. Taylor or Drumheller.

The candidate was finally chosen by a board which consisted of Fred Anderson, M.L.A., Calgary, and organizer of the party for the federal elections, Dr. Victor Wright, and the four members of the legislature within the federal riding of Bow River, these being the members for Drumheller, Gleichen, Bow Valley and Didsbury.

Mr. Johnson made many acquaintances in the Bow River riding while assisting Mr. Foster in his provincial election campaign, and his ability as a speaker was in no small way responsible for Mr. Foster's election. His friends and supporters wish him every success at the coming polls.

DESTROY GRASSHOPPER EGGS

BY FALL CULTIVATION

Reports indicate that hoppers are very numerous this fall, as owing to late hatching of eggs when crops were well advanced, the farmers underestimated the numbers present and did not spread bait in sufficient quantities.

If weather conditions remain favourable there is every indication of another outbreak in 1934.

Cultivation should be done as soon as possible, as a hose surface will not be conducive to further egg laying, and will assist in the destruction of those already hatched.

The Unknown Plot, Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he has, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home of what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge, Nancy retires one afternoon to climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and miss the path Adam Tubbs had told her to follow. A truck comes along the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They ascend the hill, look around, and then go on to Cousin Columbine. There Mark Adam tells Nancy that his brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack Nelson has been hired to help out while Luke's leg gets better. With Jack away, Nancy finds that she is lonesome, and having no books to read, the idea of starting a public library at Pine Ridge seems a good one, and Nancy writes home to get her parents to send all the books they could spare and all they could induce others to lend her.

Nancy and Matthew Adam go Christmas shopping in a neighboring town. On their return to Pine Ridge, Nancy is amazed to see the Columbine residence all lit up, and asks Matthew if he knows why. He said: Let's go in and see. Then Nancy learns that she is having her debut, but in a different setting than had been planned for her in Boston.

Nancy's parents and friends gave their liberal support to her request for books, and a circus had arrived in due course. Father Adam painted a sign for the library, and the Adam boys worked on the shelves for the books and decorations to make the room look presentable.

Now Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XVI

March "came in like a lamb," and continued lamb-like for so long that Nancy hung her fur coat at the very back of her closet, and concluded that spring had come. It was on one of these rare days when Aurora, deep in an orgy of housecleaning, ordered the girl emphatically to

"clear out," that Nancy decided to test the woodland trail to the hilltop where she had gone with Matthew three months before; and reaching the summit, dropped breathless at the foot of the old pine.

She had wanted to go out to the Adam ranch that morning, but it was "library day," and Mary Taylor, who would have taken her place behind the desk, was visiting in Pueblo. There was nothing to do but stay at home, and this was the day of weather that made one long to "go somewhere"—surely too fine a day to remain indoors. So here she was, gazing off at that marvelous picture, with Pike's Peak looking only about a mile away; and at her feet a clump of Colorado anemones like those Matt had brought her from the ranch last week. Nancy wished that Aunt Judy, who so loved flowers, was here to see them.

So here she was, gazing off at that marvelous picture, with Pike's Peak looking only about a mile away; and at her feet a clump of Colorado anemones like those Matt had brought her from the ranch last week. Nancy wished that Aunt Judy, who so loved flowers, was here to see them.

Suddenly it struck the girl as unbelievable that she should be so many miles from home, alone on a hilltop under a pine that had (as Matthew Adam pointed out), viewed things that were part of the history of her country. If only she wondered, "Oh old tree could talk! Why, it had stood here in silence and watched that Indian and his boy approach the lonely cabin where a small Colorado Columbine was rapturously enjoying their first Christmas tree! Did it tug at its sturdy roots in an effort to send forth a warning? mused Nancy whimsically; and then said aloud:

"But I'd never have had these thoughts if Matt hadn't put them in to my head, perhaps. He's a queer boy—Matt Adam—so awfully shy most of the time, and such a riot when he forgets himself. I never saw any one just like him. Mark's bright as a dollar, and one can have perfectly grand times with him; but there are days when I like his brother even more. Somehow Matt makes you want to protect him, he's so sensitive. And in that Tux the night of my—"

Nancy started, blushing as red as a rose, and the supposed Matthew had, he smiled and apologized: "Sorry I scared you. Thought maybe you saw the truck bumping along the road down there. I caught a glimpse of an orange tam and made a guess that you'd be under it. Mother wants you for supper; and Dad has promised to fry chickens if you'll come."

"Does the invitation include Cousin Columbine?" asked Nancy as the young man dropped to the ground beside her.

"Of course. You can ride back with Luke when he gets the milk cans this afternoon."

"That's grand," smiled Nancy. "How did your mother know that I was crazy to go out to the ranch today?"

"She didn't. It's a farewell banquet for yours truly. I'm swapping jobs with Mark to-morrow. Uncle Tom needs some one a while longer, and Mark is fit to tie at missing so much of your society. He called Mother up this morning with a pathetic story which she felt for instantly, and proceeded to point out the fact that it was my duty to relieve him. Mark's going to drive me to Prairie Ranch to-morrow, and come home with Mark. I hope to thunder I'll be back in another week."

"I hope so too," returned Nancy sweetly, "but it's been wonderful for Jack, having this chance of stay with you people. I didn't dream your uncle would be laid up so long."

"Neither did Mark," laughed Matthew, "or it would have required even more persuasion to make him go! But it was Uncle Tom who fixed things so Dad and Mother could marry when they did, and they'd lend him anything from their sons to their last copper. Say, Nancy, have you decided when you're going East?"

"I wrote Dad yesterday that I thought we ought to stay till June. There are such a lot of things we want to see, Matt; and goodness knows if we'll ever come again."

"Of course you will! What makes you say a thing like that? Why—why it's thought."

He didn't finish the sentence; and Nancy said demurely: "It's nice of you to want us to return! And we're going to miss you Adam a whole lot. That's straight, Matt. Yet I can't help wondering if when we ones get home again this—well, this whole experience, won't seem almost like a dream. If you knew how I dreamed to come! I was scared out of my senses. You've no idea what an awful crowd I am."

"Was, perhaps," Matthew corrected gravely.

"Nancy threw him a little smile; then her face sobered.

"I'm not so sure the past tense is correct, Matt. Sometimes I think my courage has never been tested, and wonder how I'd show up in a pinch. It was pride that made me consent to come out here—that is, mostly pride. I wanted to help Dad, of course. We all did. But I'd never have come alone, Matt. I'm so bereave."

"I beg to disagree with you, lady. Jack says you never whimpered at giving up that glorious debut."

The girl raised her head in sheer surprise.

"He did?"

Matthew nodded.

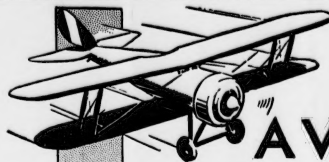

"Your kid brother thinks the world of you, Nancy. Didn't you know it?"

Nancy pondered that.

"I knew Jack was fed of me, of course; but when I hesitated about coming to Colorado—he called me a parlor ornament, and—"

Matt laughed, his eyes shining as his brother's had when Nancy first saw her.

"What's the disgrace in being sentimental so long as you're committed to these leaders? Look at our library, Miss Aladdin! Honestly, Nancy, Dad says he doesn't know any one who's accomplished so much in a short time as you have. And you've practically transformed Junia

Little Helps For This Week

Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful to me, for my soul trusteth in Thee. Yea in the shadow of Thy wings will I make my refuge, until these calamities be overpast.—Psalm 57, 1.

My God, in whom are all the springs of boundless love and grace unknown, Hide beneath Thy spreading wings, Till the dark cloud is overthrown.

In time of trouble go not out of yourself to seek for aid, for the whole benefit of trial consists in silence, patience, rest, and resignation. In this condition divine strength is found for the hard warfare, because God Himself fights for the soul.

In vain will you let your mind run out after help in times of trouble, it is like putting to sea in a storm. Be still, and feel after your principles, and if you find none there (turn) you with somewhat of a stay and prop, and which point, you to quietness and silent submission depend upon it you have never learned the truth from the Spirit of Truth.

LEADING PAINT MANUFACTURERS ANNOUNCE PRICE REDUCTION

First Quality House Paint

Now $3.95 per gallon
(Whites Slightly Higher)

The Quality Remains Exactly The Same. Only The Price Is Changed.

Dating from to-day, the price of first quality house paints manufactured and sold by the undersigned companies is reduced to $3.95 per gallon.

There has been no change in market conditions or manufacturing costs to justify this step. We feel, however, there is urgent need for action that will make it possible for house holders to obtain the highest quality paints at the lowest price consistent with strict maintenance of quality.

Thousands of people all over the country have been forced to put off much needed painting. Thousands more have been misled by "bargain" prices into using inferior paint of little or no value. We want to make it easier for you to enjoy the advantages of painting with first quality paint only, and are confident that the generous reduction in price now announced is the best way to accomplish this.
